

Governing Bodies

World Archery

www.worldarchery.org

World Archery is the world body for archery recognised by the International Olympic Committee (IOC). World Archery sets Laws and Bylaws particularly for competitions for target archery, field archery, ski archery, run archery, flight archery and clout archery.

World Archery currently consists of 150 Member Associations (national federations and associations), that are the governing bodies for archery in each country. Groups of Member Associations form Continental Associations (Africa, the Americas, Asia, Europe and Oceania). World Archery is governed and managed by the World Archery Congress, World Archery Executive Board and World Archery Committees. The day to day operations of World Archery are carried out by the World Archery Office—currently 10 employees—located at the Maison du Sport International in Lausanne, Switzerland.

Grand National Archery Society www.archerygb.org

The Grand National Archery Society is the governing body for the sport of archery in Great Britain and Northern Ireland. The Society serves nine Regional Societies. Archery has over a hundred member nations throughout the world which are represented by World Archery which is the international governing body for the sport.

The distinction of a sport can be traced back to its lineage. Archery is a most ancient sport, a sport of both Kings and Queens and is today the only sport providing the official royal bodyguard to the monarch. The skilful use of the medieval longbow at Crecy (1346) and at Agincourt (1415) laid down its mark in the annals of history and today we retain that history and balance it alongside a modern Olympic sport.

National Field Archery Society www.nfas.net

The NFAS exists to foster and promote Field Archery as a sport. All our courses are unmarked (i.e. unknown distances), usually situated in woodland, and our targets are predominantly 3D or paper animal faces.

There are ten shooting styles within the society: Primitive, Longbow, American Flatbow, Hunting Tackle, Bowhunter, Barebow, Freestyle, Crossbow, Compound Limited and Compound Unlimited. Each style is split into six classes: Gents, Ladies, Junior Boys, Junior Girls, U12 Boys, U12 Girls.

English Field Archery Society www.efafieldarcher.com

The English Field Archery Association, affiliated to the I.F.A.A. the governing body dedicated to the sport of Field Archery. Field archery is a family sport for all using the traditional English Longbow to the high speed compound bows. From the captivating aroma of Port Orford Cedar Arrows to the blistering speeds of High Tech Carbon based arrows. Members are sent a quarterly magazine called the "Field Archer" which lists upcoming competitions, results and a few helpful hints.

British Longbow Society www.askarts.co.uk/longbow

Formed in 1951, when the longbow was fast disappearing from the shooting line, the Society celebrated its Golden Jubilee in 2001. The Society currently has approaching 2000 members in Great Britain and Worldwide.

The British Long-Bow Society perpetuates the use of the traditional recreational Longbow for two-way Target and Clout shooting, by arranging Bow Meetings for its members throughout the British Isles. It endorses a Craft Guild of Traditional Bowyers and Fletchers who are able to make equipment to the Society's criteria. It assists a number of clubs and organisations who use the recreational Longbow, and many who organise their own traditional Bow Meetings to the Society's Rules of Shooting. The Hon. Membership Secretary maintains a list of "Longbow friendly" clubs which can only be kept updated if members supply details of such clubs.
